EXPERIENCE

- Junior Devoloper 2024- 2026

A junior developer is typically someone new to the field, often with 0–2 years of experience, who's still building foundational skills in programming, debugging, and collaborating within a team. They usually work under the guidance of senior developers, contribute to smaller features or bug fixes, and focus on learning best practices, code reviews, and version control. While they may not design complex systems yet, their curiosity and willingness to learn are key assets to any development team.
